Worked in a Big Project

I had the honor to work on a big portfolio website project this year, which I believe that this was a big project in my career that developed my personality and skills in a lot of aspects in programming and tech. This also had a big impact on my social skills and communicating with others.

○ Educating People in Coding

In the past two years I have been working really hard on providing and educating people in programming / coding through social media and platforms like YouTube, Instagram and TikTok. I was able to teach many people and play a big role in their programming careers through helpful tutorials in many programming fields.

○ Future Goals and Aims

In my opinion, a non ambitious person is like a dead plant. That is why we as humans need to have future goals and aims to improve and enhance our creativity and experience. I am looking forward to level up my programming skills to reach a high-professional level, even if I had to improve at least 1% a day. As a content creator I also have the aiming to teach more people how to code and have big social media profiles.
